Company Refuses Closed Shop Contract, Insists Employes Make Own Decisions on Union.

A strike in approximately 100 Rogers and Big Star food stores in the Atlanta area has been called for this morning, it was announced last night by Paul Chipman, recording secretary of the Atlanta Federation of Trades.

Those wno are to take part, Chipman said, are members of the meat cutters' local No. 442, bakers' local No. 42, truck drivers' local No. 728 and retail clerks' local No.

Opposes Closed Shop.

Scott W. Allen, president of both companies, issued a statement in which he said he had not been notified of any proposed strike except by the meat cutters' union and declared that with the exception of the matter of the closed shop no differences existed between the company and the union which could not be amicably settled.

B. H. Whitehead, business representative of the clerks' local, said his group was striking because of failure on the part of the company to accept an agreement which called for a closed shop contract; a minimum salary; seniority rights; the right to bargain collectively and the right to arbitrate any differences.

Proving the Charges

One short week of fantastic turmoil in the WPA "security wage" controversy has demonstrated the truth of several charges until recently shouted down by the administration in Washington. It is more than strange to find administration leaders swinging toward acceptance of these viewpoints, yet inconceivable they could have done otherwise when confronted with the unmistakable evidence.

The weird "strike" against the increased hours had some measure of justification in the eyes of some skilled workers; none for those unskilled except that it did constitute an increase in hours at the same level of pay, although still fewer than those of private industry. In the case of the skilled worker, it was accepted that the increase in hours was an attack on the "prevailing wage" principle of relief under which the union member received the same hourly pay given others in private industry. In some respects, the issue did transcend the question of relief.

But, going behind that issue, it is found that the disorder after which a policeman died in Minneapolis occurred at a sewing room project, and that the agitation was purely and simply against the regulation that additional work would have to be done for the relief wage. Was it, then, an indication that persons on relief have come to the belief the government should support them in return for a minimum return by them? Or was it a manifestation of what many have come to term a loss of the "work habit?" Or a combination of both.

If it is either or both-and if it demonstrates that some in the relief group have come to prefer relief to private employmentthen it is demonstrably true relief must be made less desirable, from the work and pay standpoint, than private employment, and that it must be limited in duration for individuals unless it is clearly established the individual has made an honest effort to secure private employment. This will, it is true, work a hardship in some cases, yet it is evident this must be unless the American people are prepared to support a shiftless group in perpetual laziness. Relief was designed for the average out-of-work man to tide him over a bleak period, and should be maintained for this purpose. But it has been turned to poor account and given a black eye before all the people by the ill-considered attitude of a militant minority.

The vast majority of persons on relief have not joined in the "strike" which jolted many out of a bland lethargy. But it is this vast majority that will suffer in the revulsion of the general public to the actions of the smaller group. For that reason it is imperative relief be changed from a mollycoddling of malcontents to straightforward assistance of those in actual need, who are making an honest effort to find private employment.

The administration, and the officials of the WPA, have announced there will be no surrender to the demands of the malcontents. In this they will have the support of every citizen, awake at last to the attitude toward relief that has grown in the minds of some of its recipients.

A Great Record

The resignation of Miss Jessie Hopkins as Bbrarian of the Carnegie Library provokes two general reactions. One is sincere regret that her services to the people of Atlanta and Fulton county are thus brought to an end, and the other is renewed realization of the really magnificent work she has done against heavy handicap.

Miss Hopkins has been with the library for 18 years, the last nine in the capacity as librarian. Throughout her entire administration there has been a severe shortage of funds for the proper operation of such an institution. Despite this lack she has held the morale of the library staff to highest peak and has managed to continue, year after year, a quality of public service seldom equaled in any public libraries of this type. It is fortunate that one so well qualified as Miss Fanny D. Hinton, assistant librarian for nine years, is ready to step into the place vacated by Miss Hopkins. Nevertheless, the retiring librarian will long be missed and the record of public service she has achieved under difficult circumstances will keep her name forever honored when the story of the public library in Atlanta is told.

Shift in Constitutional Doctrine

In an address this week before the annual convention of the American Bar Association. Frank J. Hogan, president, pointed out that what the people had come to regard as the warp and woof of fundamental law has undergone a drastic change within a few years. Mr. Hogan was careful to indicate that his address was in no way to be interpreted as an attack against the high tribunal and that he was speaking for himself, not for the bar association.

In pointing out the trend of the court's opinions away from well established principles of constitutional law, the bar president said "it is no exaggeration to say, in several instances, what were frankly termed 'important shifts in constitutional doctrines' were in fact most devastating destruction of constitutional limitations upon federal power and the most unprecedented expansion of that power over the every-day affairs and activities of individual citizens witnessed in the century and a half of the nation's existence."

After enumerating decisions of the courtreversing previous opinions-which he regarded as encroachment upon personal freedom, he stated that the cases involving inter-governmental tax immunity had greatly impaired the old relation of dual sovereignty. The decisions referred to held that state and federal government can tax the salaries of each other's employes.

Apparently not opposed to assessing the tax as such, Mr. Hogan seemed more interested in pointing out the sudden change in constitutional doctrine in general which, for a century and a half, and as late as 1937, was deemed well established upon reason and authority by the court itself. After all these years, after so many able jurists on the Supreme Court bench had upheld the principle of immunity, the court of 1939 dismissed it on the ground "no sound reason existed for any such rule."

With the new trend thoroughly in motion the bar association president thought reliance against the exercise of arbitrary power henceforth must be placed by the people in the legislative, rather than in the judicial, department of the national government. It therefore devolves upon the people to exercise unusual care in the selection of their representatives. Congress, by the recent course of action by the high court, has been freed from most restrictions on the exercise of power.

And therein lies the danger, according to Mr. Hogan, for the burden upon congress has been greatly increased. When hasty and poorly conceived panaceas, based upon the difficulties of the moment, are threatening the constitutional rights of the people, it may no longer be felt with assurance that the Supreme Court of the United States will follow a fundamental, thoroughly travelled, well-charted

It would seem more in keeping with the basic intent for a state park system to have the hotels in the parks operated only on an upkeep basis and made available only to those persons who cannot afford private accomodations in surrounding areas. It is difficult to justify any state competition in the resort field. more particularly so when the competition involves private profit without apparent heavy investment. If it is considered desirable to have available private facilities within the confines of a state park, then it would appear more logical to remove the hotels from state title to a private owner or owners by sale to the highest bidder, thereby equalizing the investment and competitive elements.

This is not in any way a reflection upon the operation of the hostelries by Andrew Smith, now under indictment but against whom no word previously has been raised. It is, rather, an examination of the case surrounding the operation of public facilities by any private interests in a highly competitive field. It would appear on first glance it is not desirable, and that a more equitable basis of use could be devised.

JOBS THROUGH "SPLENDING" WASHINGTON, July 14.—Hopes may be fla-grantly high for the new $3,600,000,000 program of "self-liquidating" spending and lending. Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. and his subordinates, who sponsored "splending," have had to learn optimism in order to carry on their weary battle to balance the budget. Yet, as the program goes before congress, the hopes deserve to be set forth in some details.

First, it is hoped that the program will re-employ from 500,000 to 750,000 men in the first year. Railroad equipment, farm tenancy loans, rural electrification, toll roads, toll bridges and the other projects included in the program scarcely seem to promise such extensive job opportunities. The re-employment figures were compiled, however, by the usually conservative Treasury experts. They were the chief factor influencing the President to accept splending as a substitute for more drastic action.

Second, it is hoped, particularly by Henry Morgenthau, that splending will prove the first step toward budget-balancing. Being self-liquidating, the new program will not add to the drain on the Treasury except by unavoidable losses. Morgenthau, very significantly, has ceased to struggle for an immediate transition from an unbalanced to a balanced budget. He regards splending as an easy transitional phase, calculated to avert the economic strain and powhich would be produced by a sudden cessation of large federal expenditure.

Third, it is hoped that, by creating employment and providing a cheap stimulus to business, the program will avert the "someworse" against which Morgenthau has successfully struggled. Specifically, the Treasury's terror of a sudden old-age pension raid by New Deal spenders is growing daily more intense. The Treasury believes that the program has already bottled up the move to appropriate $500,000,000 for additional direct PWA spending at this session, and expects the program's results to negative the pensionraiders' arguments next year.

THE INTENSIVE EFFORT All these hopes are, of course, angrily pooh-poohed by the anti-Treasury men in the administration, who feel all the more frustrated now because they have commonly been victorious in the past. Besides questioning the practicality of splending, they say it is not the innovation it has been made to seem. They point out that powers already exist, chiefly at the RFC, to launch most of the program's projects.

The Treasury's answer to this contention is that, while the powers may exist, there has never been a really intensive effort to bring idle men and idle capital together without competing with private industry, and without significant cost to the government. The experiment, argues the Treasury, is well worth trying. In order to make it feasible, the program does embody one important new departure-a lower interest rate. Hitherto, the RFC, managed by the hard-headed Jesse H. Jones, has charged from 3 to 5 per cent for money obtained as low as around 1 per cent. A new formula is provided in the splending bill, setting a little over 1 per cent to a little under 3 per cent as the limits of interest. Loan maturities have also been extended.

With these new temptations to borrowers, the Treasury anticipates that the first year of splending will amount to from $500,-000,000 to $1,000,000,000. If these totals are achieved, from 250,-000 to 300,000 men will be directly employed, principally on public works. The balance of the estimated 500,000 to 750,000 jobs will be created indirectly, through sub-contracts, material requirements and so forth. Finally, the Treasury believes that ultimate losses will run considerably below 10 per cent of total investment, being most likely to be serious in the program's agricultural sections.

END TO TOUGHNESS As originally drawn by Morgenthau and Treasury general counsel, Edward H. Foley Jr., the splending bill sets up a new corporation to administer the program, with Morgenthau, Jones, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody on its board. The new corporation was scrapped and the RFC was made the splending agent after Senators Robert F. Wagner and James F. Byrnes had objected that it could do the job as well. Nevertheless, the original plan was not without its meaning, particularly with reference to the tough Jones lending policy. ful as it has proved, the Jones toughness has come to be disliked, not only among New Deal spenders but also at the Treasury. a New Dealer, such as Emil Schram, at the head of the RFC, a more liberal attitude is to be looked for.

By RALPH McGILL. "PRACTICE FLIGHT" Flying down to Mexico City som time ago we ran into a rather sever storm with a wind which attained a velocity of about 92 miles at hour. It was night and there was a lashing rain. Now and then in the brilliant flashes of lightning there could be seen a farmhouse and an occasional small city. The storn lasted for all of an hour and a half. It was a large plane, as large as some of the great bombers And one could sit there in the dark and the lashing rain and imagine about how it would feel to be flying on a bombing mis sion with some of those big 500-pounders hanging beneath the plane, ready to go whining down when a lever was pulled. In the last World War the Germans managed to throw a few shells into Paris and also to drop a few bombs. But the never attained a respectable size. They were small and often no larger than hand grenades. I mean to say, the largest bombs used in the World War are pigmy in comparison with the ones all ready for the next one. I saw some of the duds in the museums in London They caused some terror but the damage done was so small that it was possible for repair crews to clear away the damage in a few hours. I was reminded of all this by the report from London of the "practice flight" of English bombers.

125 FULLY LOADED BOMBERS England flew 125 fullyloaded bombing planes on a strictly routine flight across southwestern France with Bordeaux

It was a flight of 1,200 miles and it was made in six hours with the bombers flying at cruising speed only. They could have cut the time by one-third, as the Blenheim bombers will travel at about 290 miles per hour. In England and France the satisfaction is intense. In Germany the irritation is deep.

For the people of Germany the flight ought to have some significance and if any word of it got into the newspapers, the honest German citizen, sipping his beer in a beer hall or sitting at home in the evening, must be thinking it over.

It will occur to him that the objective could have been Berlin instead of Bordeaux. In Italy they might wonder what would have happened had Rome been the objective.

From London to Berlin is a mere 583 miles by air. One reaches Hamburg in a hop of 453 miles, and Munich is but 573 miles away. It is but 900 miles to Rome, only 570 to Turin and a mere 598 miles to Milan.

The distance, of course, is the same from Berlin to the English cities. It works both ways. And Germany has about 2,000 bomb-England is an easy target. But the flight did not include all of England's planes and the Germans, who must have been thinking, as did most of the world, that only Germany had bombers, must be thinking about the ephemerality of their own roofs when compared with the force of a bomb.

SPEEDING UP ARMAMENTS England has speeded up in a tremendous fashion. It requires some statistics to illustrate just what speeding up means. Three years ago England had 30,000 men engaged in airplane production. Today she has 150,000. Today she has more than 4,000 planes at home. Just this week the new figures were announced for the 1939 preparations. They were $1,063,000,000 for air force production and $768,000,000 for the navy.

A year ago Germany was believed supreme in the air. Today that edge is called superiority. England is straining every nerve to catch up.

The totalitarian countries, where the workers must work 12 and 14 hours per day at low wages, have done away with unemployment because of the tremendous amount of labor needed to build fortifications and to man the armament factories.

Bombers are getting the most attention in plane factories. And this little practice flight by England caused extreme irritation in Germany and may do some good. The Germans, of course, may come back with a flight of 1,000 planes to Italy.

But even so, the lesson is a good one-that flight from London

My dear Louise: I overheard part of the argument last night. It must have been enjoyable, for it was noisy. In any case, I think you finally agreed that America no longer offers you the golden opportunities it once

But what were those golden opportunities? And where? And when? You haven't yet read "The Horse and Buggy Doctor," so I'll tell you a bit of it. When Hertzler finished his studies in Germany and selected a small town in which to practice, he decided that he needed a hospital of his own. Building it left him deeply in debt; expenses were more than his income; anxieties and multiplied vexations wore his down till he was an easy mark for disease. He was no softy. Since earliest childhood he had lived in poverty and hardship. Long before he reached his teens he was guid-

He survived such trifles as typhoid fever, erysipelas, a cracked skull and being lost in a blizzard. And though he was naturally frail, hardship had whetted him down and tempered him like a steel blade.

At the time he opened his hospital, his worst physical handicap was a weekly attack of migraine—which is the grandfather of all headaches. But soon thereafter he developed a tuberculous tumor on the middle finger of his left hand.

He cut it out himself, and then endured nine months of torture while a new tendon sheath grew in. Meanwhile he could do no surgery, and no money came in. Then the finger got well, and he developed jaundice. That finally put him on his back, but he re-covered in time to develop the most agonizing of all diseases acute articular rheumatism. While he was fighting that, his creditors made him sign away his interest in the hospital. He was licked, but that wasn't the end. When he got over the rheumatism, he was mere skin and bones; and then he discovered that he had tuberculosis of the left lung. He was really down, then-so low he had to reach up to touch bottom.

Well, that was 40-odd years ago—in the good old days—and he lived to own a great hospital and win fame as both surgeon and author. He is hale and hearty still, which is all the moral any story

But the point of all this is to show you what golden opportunities youngsters had in the old days. You modern kids have had a soft time and you wish to keep it.

You don't see any opportunity because you are looking for some way to start at the top—some way to get money and luxury and ease at one jump. But there never has been and never will be such opportunity. The old-timers who amounted to anything were the ones who could take it—the ones who worked long and hard for little reward to get a start. And that kind of opportunity can be found anywhere in any age, believe it or not. OFF THE RECORD-By Ed Reed

MRS. S. N. EVINS DIES; RITES TODAY

Social and Cultural Leader Succumbs in 67th Year After Long Illness.

Mrs. Samuel Nesbitt Evins, long leader in Atlanta's social and cultural circles and the wife of one of the best-known attorneys in the city, died just before midnight Thursday at her home, 188 Fourteenth street, after an illness of two years. She was in her 67th year.

A native of Columbia, S. C., Mrs. Evins was the daughter of the late Dr. Thomas T. and Mary Sawyer Moore, and was educated at Martin school, Stewart Hall and Old Harvard Annex, now Radcliffe College.

She moved to Atlanta in April, 1898, immediately after her marriage to Mr. Evins, and during the entire period of her residence here held an outstanding position of leadership in the city's artistic and cultural life.

Interested in Art. Always deeply interested in art, which she followed as a hobby, she was one of the principal founders of the Atlanta Art Association of which she was a trustee and a life member. The association now controls and operates the High Museum.

Also prominent in religious work prior to her illness, she was an active member of St. Luke's Episcopal church and of the church's St. Agnes Circle. She also was a member of the Friday Morning Reading Club, the History Club, and the Planters Garden Club.

In addition to her husband, she s survived by two daughters. Mrs. Henry G. Cooper, wife of Commander Cooper of the United States navy, and Miss Emily Cleveland Evins; three sons, Elliott D., Thomas A. and S. N. Evins Jr.; four sisters, Mrs. J. K. Orr Jr., of Atlanta; Mrs. C. Sin-N. C.; Miss Kate C. Moore, of Asheville, N. C., and Miss Pamela C. Moore, of Columbia, S. C., and three brothers, A. Talley, Elliott and Dr. Thomas T. Moore, all of Columbia, S. C.

Services Today.
Funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock this afternoon at St. Luke's Episcopal church by the Rev. John Moore Walker. The body will be sent to Spartanburg for burial.

Pallbearers will be R. L. Foreman Sr., Linton C. Hopkins Sr., tors. He also is a Robert P. Jones, Scott Hudson Sr., tional vice president.

REHOBOAM'S FOOLISH CHO.CE. Sunday's lesson, I Kings 12:1-20, presents another sad picture—that of Rehoboam, son of Solomon who, on the occasion of his coronation as King, exhibited strongly the arrogant willfulness of a foolish choice, namely, setting aside tl : advice of his enior councillors and following the advice younger men, saying "My father's rule pressed hard on you, but I will press harder still; my father lashed you with scourges, but I will lash you with scorpions."

GOOD MORNING

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON.

What can you do with an ambitious young fellow who hasn't much sense himself and who refuses the wisdom of his elders? Rehoboam came to the throne at a time when the kingdom of Israel was at its height, numbering 6,000,000 people with an area of 60,000 square miles. What a glorious opportunity to have been a true leader, a servant of the people and of God!

instead, he thought only of him-self, of his power and importance. He had no understanding of the needs of his people, being blind to the dangers of rebellion. His cre ambition was to outdo his spectacular father.

was too bad for Rehoboam that in the very moment when he made his foolish decision, Jere-Carleton Y. Smith, Dr. Hugh M. Lokey, Philip H. Alston Sr., Judge Price Gilbert, Samuel M. Weyman, Judge Shepherd Bryan, Charles H. Black Sr., Dr. Cyrus W. Strickler, Wilmer L. Moore Sr. and Ralph Williams. works in the upbuilding of Jerusalem. When they received the foolish decision of Rehoboam, they turned to Jereboam, and made him King, "and there was none that followed the house of David, save the tribe of Judah only."

Thus the old line of cleavage between the north and the south was reopened and never again rejoined. Armies vere summoned into action, though by the word of Jehovah war was averted. Rehoboam ruled in a poor sort of fashion for 17 years, and then "he slept with his fathers."

Jereboam made Shechem his political capital from which he governed the ten tribes. He set u idols at Bethel and Dan, leading the people into frightening forms of idolatry. The loss of his child, as propnessed by the servent of the Lord, did not bring him to repentance, and after a miser-able rule of 22 years, he "slept with his fathers."

In such a race as Southern league clubs are in the throes so to speak, 90 victories will win the pennant. Managers in general agreement on this score.

From the looks of things, it's going to be tough for any b to win 90 games, and that includes Memphis.

The Crackers, for instance, have won 47 games while losing To win 90 games they will have to take 43 games while ing only 24 between now and September 10. They necesily must play .647 baseball, and that is a real chore, conering that every club is battling for every game.

Memphis is the only club that could play on the sunny side of .600 baseball from here on out and secure the necessary 90 games. But even the Chicks, maintaining their present pace of around .585, will have to It just happens to be a tough race and the weather has moved that a great winning streak wouldn't put them in the thick of the fight. And, while the pennant fight is going to be extremely in-resting, with the possibility that only a couple of games will parate the first and second clubs at the finish, the scrap for st division places in the play-off seems to have even more

GILBERT STARTS ANNUAL DRIVE.

Both Glock and Meyer were greeted with angry boos for the duration of the game. What Meyer, former T. C. The Vols are playing better ball and are fortified at a puple of positions, especially behind the plate. Greek George aiding the Vols no little.

The Vols would have to play almost .700 ball until the end of the season to take the pennant, which they may not do unless more pitching help is forthcoming. But the Vols definitely are a threat for a play-

RICHARDS "FEARS" KNOXVILLE.

There is no disposition on the part of either Paul Richards Larry Gilbert to give Memphis the pennant. In fact, neither inks Memphis will win.

Gilbert says: "I still like Atlanta. I think the Crackers may go right up in there and give both Memphis and Chattanooga all kinds of trouble. I liked Atlanta from the start and I'm not changing.

"It's a club with balance. It has good pitching, enough hitng, and all kinds of speed and defense. It's still a great race, drove in three runs and scored one nd I doubt if more than two games will separate the first and himself. It was the ninth straight econd clubs at the finish."

Richards, who has insisted at intervals since the season arted that Memphis is the team to beat, now says that Knoxille has a fine chance to win.

WHAT DOES KELTESKUNG MEAN IN A BEER?

DEFRESHING means reviving, K invigorating. That is what a good beer is—and the better the beer, the more refreshing.

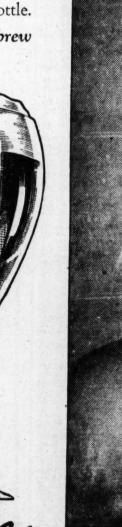

A glass of Good Old Atlantic Beer is like the grateful relief of a cold shower on a hot, sultry day. It owes its extra-refreshment to the extra fine ingredients which go into it—the skill and painstaking care with which it is brewed-the long aging in cool, quiet cellars far underground which bring it slowly but surely to its final mellow perfection.

Open a bottle of refreshing Atlantic Beer. Pour a golden glassful. Note its pale, clear, amber gleam, its sparkle, its deep creamy head.

Drink it-slowly-so that you get the full benefit of its dry, balanced flavor—the full-bodied richness of the fine barley malt—the zesty tang of choicest hops.

You can pay more for a beer, but you can't buy finer. For Good Old Atlantic Beer is made the slow, expensive way-yet it costs you only ten cents a bottle.

the Department of Superintendents and Board Members of the Public Schools of Georgia, Board of Public Welfare and Association

Pointing out what was termed "the acute problems which affect the welfare of the people of Georthe resolution cited the necessity for additional revenue to pay past-due teachers' salaries and reopen schools this fall.

Other needs cited included adequate funds for the maintenance of the eleemosynary institutions of the state, operation of the social security program and the replacing of funds lost by counties due to exemptions.

After urging the special legislative session the resolution states: "On our opinion, the most feas-ible and equitable method for raising the necessary funds to meet these services is through the enactment of a 3 per cent general sales tax with proper allocations thereof to the governmental depart-ments mentioned above."

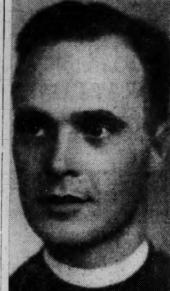

Members of the joint committee include W. E. Beverly, Thomasville; A. J. Keith, Gay; J. A. McCurdy, Decatur; Dr. J. R. Wilson, Thomson; A. T. Minchew, Pearson; Captain Frank W. #### BILL PASSED TO UP U.S.

BONDED INDEBTEDNESS WASHINGTON, July 14.—(P)—
The senate approved and sent to the White House today legislation permitting the Treasury to issue up to $45,000,000,000 of bonds.

Existing law limits bond issues to $30,000,000,000, although the limit on the total debt is $45,000, 000. Secretary Morgenthau requested removal of the bond limitation because then, he said, the Treasury could obtain more favorable financing terms.

Lorio, state senator and member of the university board of supervisors who was charged with knowingly receiving and having embezzled goods in his possession. Dr. Lorio is official physician for the university and prominent state political leader. E. N. Jackson, business manager of the university, charged on two indictments, one alleging counts of knowingly receiving and having embezzled goods in his possession, and one with having aidand abetted George Caldwell in the embezzlement of materials. Caldwell, former superintendent of construction at the university was charged twice with embezzle ment. A total of 28 indictments wer returned against the four men. Smith, now in jail, was indicted on 12 counts of forgery, two of them charging he forged the name of the late Governor O. K. Allen on two $1,000 L. S. U. bonds, and 10 indictments charging he forged and counterfeited ten $1,000 L. S. U. bonds bearing the facsimile signature of Eugene Cazdessus, the late vice president territory at Knoxville Tenn of the university's board of supervisors. The 11 other indictments against

Smith charged him in various instances with altering the board's minutes. Dr. Lorio, an intimate friend and co-worker with the late Senator Huey P. Long, was arrested immediately. Deputies were sent out to find Jackson and Caldwell.

The jury was the same which had previously indicted Dr. Smith for the alleged embezzlement of $100,000 of university funds, and returned other indictments against his broker, J. M. Brown, of New Orleans, and three relatives who

Man Visualizes Early Loves

By Caroline Chatfield.

Every now and then comes a letter from a man who has two major worries: a wife that doesn't suit him and a conscience that won't let him throw her overboard. He has suffered in silence and been faithful. Such letters few and far between. Generally speaking, one may be sure that the reference to the other woman will be found on page two.

Presumably there are a good many men who get married just because it's marrying time and missing first choices they grab poor seconds expecting marriages to pan out. Eventually they don't know that when a wife wakes up to the realization that she's merely caretaker for home, husband and children, the heart goes out of her and thereafter she's merely an automaton as far as her husband is con-cerned. When this happens both are in a trap out can't say who

At any time, at any age a man can get out of marriage, none the worst for the experience, but not so with the wife. By the time his middle-aged dissatisfactions have set in, she's middle-aged, tied down with the family, life complicated no end. While the husband is 50 per cent responsible for the complications, at the same time he's free of them and when he makes up his mind to quit, the court can free him and no sooner free than he's married again and got the new family under way.

Now isn't it a shabby trick for him to trade on this, walk out on his wife and family, arguing that he's entitled to happiness which he claims he hasn't had? How comes he by the right to think exclusively of his own pleasure and skip the responsibilities which he assumed of his own free will and accord? No wonder his conscience lashes him and he asks an outsider to tell him that he has the inalienable right to pur-suit of personal happiness. But

As for instance this disappointed husband who writes: "Miss Chatfield, the girl I loved married companies that impulse or companies that impulse that impulse or companies that impulse tha I married a fine girl thinking I could learn to love her. After our children came she gray cold to me and lavished all her love on them. I have been a good and faithful husband to her but when of happiness that I had looked forward to in my marriage, I wonder of I should be doomed to this the case. Yet I keep asking myself the question why shouldn't there be? Isn't every man enpathetic woman companion for his latter years? I haven't got that and I want it and I know my wife will never change."

Woman's Quiz

Q. Is it necessary to remove the skin from squash?

A. Not if the squash is young I quiz Miss Massey on her rumored marriage - to - be with wealthy film executive Serv Vita Q. What happens to fat in the digestive process?

A. It is split into fatty acids and glycerol which, however, upon absorption are recombined into neutral fat. It is believed that this recombination occurs during the passage of these products through the intestinal wall. The fat thus absorbed is taken up by the lymph vessels rather than the capillary blood vessels, and is poured with the lymph into the blood. The fat which renders the blood plasma turbid at the height of absorption will usually have passed from the blood into the tissues after a few hours. The fat thus leaving the blod may be burned as fuel, or stored for use as fuel in the future, and a part may be trans-formed into tissue lipoid or enter into combination with proteins to form some of the chemically more complex substances of cellular protoplasm, cell membrane, or of the central nervous system. And, of course, with fresh vegesource of energy for muscular work and other activities, essen-

At Middle Age, MY DAY Moral Change Depend On the Individual

and it seems simpler to see them here than to have them all journey to Hyde Park.

I feit a little sorry yesterday afternoon for Mrs. Gerard Swope and Miss Mabel Vernon, who had asked to come to see me to talk over a visit from some South American ladies, planned by the Women's Mandate for Peace Committee. When they were leaving, Mrs. Swope said: "You are very well hidden away here." My heart sank as I inquired: "Did you have a hard time finding me?" She replied: "We wandered around for about half an hour."

A number of letters have come to me complaining hitterly about the fact that I said in an arrange of the said in a said in plaining bitterly about the fact that I said in an article recently that the repeal of prohibition had been a crusade carried on by women. I know quite well, of course, that the Democratic party took the stand in its platform that prohibition should be repealed. I have always felt, however, that the Women's Organization for Repea which was a non-partisan organization, laid the groundwork which which was a non-partisan organization, laid the groundwork which I was one of those who were very happy when the original prohibition amendment passed. I thought innocently that a law in this country would automatically be complied with, and my ow observation led me to feel rather ardently that the less stroiliquor anyone consumed the better it was. During prohibition observed the law meticulously, but I came gradually to see th laws are only observed with the consent of the individuals concerned and a moral change still depends on the individual and n on the passage of any law.

Little by little it dawned upon me that this law was not makin people drink any less, but it was making hypocrites and lay breakers of a great number of people. It seemed to me best to g back to the old situation in which, if a man or woman drank the excess, they were injuring themselves and their immediate fami and friends and the act was a violation against their own sense morality and no violation against the law of the land.

I could never quite bring myself to work for repeal, but I coul not oppose it, for intellectually I had to agree that it was the hones thing to do. My contacts are wide and I see a great man different groups of people, and I cannot say that I find that the change in the law has made any great change in conditions amo young or old in the country today.

CHICAGO, July 14.—(AP)—Despite extreme weakness in corn prices, which sagged more than a cent to the lowest levels since April, 1934, the wheat market today put on a strong recovery performance, scoring gains of around

Absence of purchasing incentives depressed the corn market, but investors and consuming interests were reported attracted by the low level of wheat values and their buying kept that market strong most of the session. While the break in corn unsettled the entire market, all commodities rallied before the close, with wheat and rye leading the upturn. Moderating temperatures in parts of the grain belt induced some selling of both wheat and corn, but generally fair and warmer weather was predicted and rain was badly needed in some districts. Flour demand diminished in the southwest, but mills were after cash wheat and Kansas City reports said rumors of export business, presumably through the subsidy, were in circulation.

NEW YORK, July 14.-(AP)-Liquidation of the July delivery and transfers from this month forward dominated cotton futures trading today. July went off the board at noon with a net gain of 3 points, but other months closed

1 to 2 points lower. A leading spot interest was credited with selling and switching about 30 000 bales of July 140 Mayson avenue, N. E., Alonzo Gholing about 30,000 bales of July. When the contract went into the discard, however, the market quieted considerably. Brokers still had nothing definite from Washington to work on concerning export subsidy plans and as a result activity in new crop deliveries tapered off. Exports today 4,293 bales; season so far 3,495,910. Port receipts 10,697; port-stocks 1,923,419.

Kim Asks Betty's Opinion of Breaking An Engagement When It's a Mistake

By RUBY M. AYRES.

WHAI HAS GONE BEFORE.

When Derek Challoner's wife dies, the stodgy English landowner, whose marriage has been the result of a family understanding, is really glad of his freedom, vowing he will never marry again. Then he sees dainty Stella Dawson playing a small part in a suburban theater and is an ardent suitor. She marries him. Imposing Narrow Lane Hall depresses Stella but he ignores her request that they live in his smaller house in London. When the baby is born she is happy until the Challoner tradition puts little Elizabeth in charge of nurse, then governess. Stella and Derek's friends are not congenial and after seven years is increasing unhappiness she welcomes the open adoration of Pip Hulbert. When divorce threatens, Stella pleads with Derek for Betty. He refuses and after her mother marries Pip she pines, becomes very ill and Derek's doctor says she will die if not permitted to go to her mother. When Elizabeth is 16, Pip is killed in an accident and Stella is inconsolable. While on a bus trip a year later Elizabeth meets Kim Lawless, whose wood she invaded to pick primroses despite a warning to trespassers. She likes him and he says he hopes she comes again. Derek dies, leaving a will providing that Elizabeth get half of his wealth if she leaves Stella and lives with her Aunt Thornley. Penelope, her stepsister, bears this news and can't understand when Elizabeth says she will remain with her mother. Lawless, Elizabeth learns, was to have married Penelope, but broke his engagement. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY: WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

INSTALLMENT VIII.

READER OF POLISH COULD SURE HELP MRS. C. P. RAMPEY

A polite Polish preacher has written his hostess-to-be a most polite letter. Of that, Mrs. C. P. Rampey, of 1348 Iverson street, N. E., is sure. But what the letter says, Mrs. Rampey hasn't the slightest idea.

Mrs. Rampey is one of the nu-merous Atlantans who has volunteered to have a delegate to the Baptist World Alliance as her guest during the congress begin-ning July 22. To her was assign-ed the Rev. Ludwig Miksa, of Lodz, Poland.

Yesterday Mrs. Rampey received a letter from the preacher— written in Polish. If anyone can translate the message, Mrs. Rampey's telephone number is Main 0372.

TARZAN AND THE FIRES OF TOHR

Dr. Wong, for his own unfathomable reasons, wished to prevent Ahtea's visit to the Jewel Pits. "Let us bring Kailuk, the chief conspirator, and question him in private," he suggested. "No!" question him in private," he suggested. Ahtea objected, "there may be others in the plot. We must trap them all!" . . .

. It seemed that fickle fortune had marshaled her forces against Tarzan. While Queen Ahtea fared forth to thwart the mutiny of slaves, Ukah and D'Arnot were encountering a series of mishaps that threatened to foil their attempt to summon aid for the ape-man.

604 CANDLER BLDG.

After they had escaped the Tohrians, they ran afoul of a stampeding herd of elephants. Only by his phenomenal skill did Ukah guide his own mount out of the panicky throng. Finally they came to a water hole, where they lay down to rest while their elephant drank.

But the beast, still nervous from his experience with the stampeders, suddenly bolted. Almost at the same moment, D'Arnot spied a horde of ele-phant-mounted men dashing across the plain toward the water hole. "A Tohrian patrol!" he exclaimed hopelessly; "we're lost!"
